You are advised to obtain professional tax advice on your individual circumstances.

Yours truly,

Canada Dominion Resources Group

PART I

ACB of partnership units as at April 18, 2006

On the rollover date of the Partnership, you are deemed to dispose of your units in the Partnership for proceeds equal to and to have acquired Shares of DMP Resource Class at a cost equal to the ACB of your partnership units. The following table outlines the ACB per unit of the Partnership based on information available to us. Please be advised that your individual circumstances may result in an ACB per unit that is different from what is outlined below. We suggest you consult a tax professional for advice.

ACB of partnership units as at April 18, 2006
CDR 2004
$15.4352 per unit

To determine the total ACB of your partnership units disposed and the cost of Shares acquired, multiply the ACB per unit of the partnership by the number of partnership units you owned immediately before the dissolution.

Filing Instructions for Form T5013 (version 2004)

Box 18

Canadian and foreign net business income (loss)

This amount represents your share of partnership net income (loss) for the 2006 fiscal period ended April 18, 2006. This amount should be reported in Part III, "Net Partnership Income (Loss)" of Schedule 4. The total amount in Part III should be reported on line 122, page 2 of your 2006 T1 General Income Tax and Benefit Return.

Box 23

Capital gains (losses)

This amount represents your share of partnership capital gains (losses) for the 2006 fiscal period ended April 18, 2006. This amount should be reported on line 174, "T5, T5013, T5013A and T4PS Information slips – Capital gains (or losses)" of Schedule 3. The taxable capital gains from line 199 of Schedule 3 should be reported on line 127, page 2 of your 2006 T1 General Income Tax and Benefit Return.

Box 25

Actual amount of dividends from corporations resident in Canada

This amount represents your share of the partnership's actual dividends received from Canadian corporations for the 2006 fiscal period ended April 18, 2006.

The amount in Box 25 will include both eligible dividends and non-eligible dividends. In the "Details" section, it will indicate the amount of eligible and non-eligible dividends.

- (i) Calculate the taxable amount of eligible dividends by multiplying the actual amount of eligible dividends by 1.45. The taxable amount of eligible dividends should be reported in Part I, "Taxable amount of dividends (eligible and other than eligible) from taxable Canadian corporations" of Schedule 4 in either lines 5, 6 or 7. The total amount in Part I should be reported on line 120, page 2 of your 2006 T1 General Income Tax and Benefit Return.
- (ii) Calculate the taxable amount of non-eligible dividends by multiplying the actual amount of non-eligible dividends by 1.25. The taxable amount of non-eligible dividends should be reported in Part I, "Taxable amount of dividends (eligible and other than eligible) from taxable Canadian corporations" of Schedule 4 in either lines 1, 2 or 3. The total amount of taxable non-eligible dividend in Part I line 4 should be reported on line 180, page 2 of your 2006 T1 General Income Tax and Benefit Return.
- (iii) Calculate the federal dividend tax credit by adding the federal dividend tax credit of eligible dividends and the federal dividend tax credit of non-eligible dividends. To calculate the federal dividend tax credit of eligible dividends, multiply the taxable amount of eligible dividend portion reported on line 120, page 2 of your 2006 T1 General Income Tax and Benefit Return (i.e. total amount of lines 5, 6, and 7 in Part I of Schedule 4) by 18.9655%. To calculate the federal dividend tax credit of non-eligible dividends, multiply the taxable amount of non-eligible dividend reported on line 4, Part I of Schedule 4 by 13.3333%. The federal dividend tax credit amount should be reported on line 425 of Schedule 1. The total amount on line 50 of Schedule 1 should be reported on line 420, page 4 of your 2006 T1 General Income Tax and Benefit Return.

Box 26Interest from Canadian sources

This amount represents your share of partnership interest income for the 2006 fiscal period ended April 18, 2006. This amount should be reported in Part II, "Interest and other investment income" of Schedule 4. The total amount in Part II should be reported on line 121, page 2 of your 2006 T1 General Income Tax and Benefit Return.

Box 45Limited partner's at-risk amount

This amount represents a partner's original cost of partnership interest plus or minus certain adjustments. A limited partner cannot deduct partnership losses in excess of their "at-risk" amount.

This amount is used by taxpayers and Canada Revenue Agency to determine the limit to which you can deduct losses and resource expenses, as well as any investment tax credits that may be claimed. It is not reported in the 2006 T1 General Income Tax and Benefit Return.

Box 51Partnership's total gross income

This amount represents the total fiscal 2006 gross income of the partnership.

Partners are not required to report this amount in the 2006 T1 General Income Tax and Benefit Return.

This information has been provided to assist you with the preparation of your 2006 and subsequent years individual income tax returns and is based on information and tax forms available at the time of writing.

The total taxable capital gain from line 98 of Schedule G should be reported on line 139, page 2 of your 2006 Québec Income Tax Return.

Note: You are strongly advised to consult with your tax advisor to determine your eligibility for exemption on gains realized from the disposition of resource property.

Box 14 Gross income (or gross loss) of the partnership

This amount represents the total 2006 gross income or loss of the partnership. Partners are not required to report this amount in the 2006 Québec Income Tax Return.

Box 26 At-risk amount

This amount represents a partner's original cost of partnership interest plus or minus certain adjustments. A limited partner cannot deduct partnership losses and resource expenses in excess of the "at-risk" amount. This amount is for reference only and is not reported in the 2006 Québec Income Tax Return.

This information has been provided to assist you with the preparation of your 2006 and subsequent years individual income tax returns and is based on information and tax forms available at the time of writing.

PART III

Schedule of Partnership's unamortized balance of issue costs available for deduction

Limited partners of record at the date of dissolution of the partnership are entitled to claim a deduction, on their 2006 and subsequent years income tax returns, in respect of the unamortized balance of issue costs incurred by the partnership.

To determine the total deduction available in 2006 and beyond, multiply the deduction per unit amount outlined below for the respective taxation year by the number of corresponding partnership units you owned immediately before the dissolution.

You should report the total amount available for deduction on line 232 – "Other deductions", on page 3 of the T1 General Income Tax and Benefit Return.

For Québec residents only, you should report the total amount available for deduction on line 250 – "Other deductions", on page 2 of the Québec Income Tax Return.

Taxation year	CDR 2004 Deduction per unit
2006	$0.3737
2007	$0.3737
2008	$0.3737
2009	$0.3737
2010	$0.3737

Important: Please retain this schedule for use in preparing your individual income tax return in future taxation years. No additional information/reminder will be mailed to you with respect to these deductions.
